

Gazetteer of the old and new geographies of the United Kingdom

About the Office for National Statistics

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) is the Government Agency responsible for compiling, analysing and disseminating many of the United Kingdom's economic, social and demographic statistics, including the retail prices index, trade figures and labour market data, as well as the periodic census of the population and health statistics. The Director of ONS is also Head of the Government Statistical Service (GSS) and Registrar-General in England and Wales and the agency carries out all statutory registration of births, marriages and deaths there.

Editorial policy statement

The Office for National Statistics works in partnership with others in the Government Statistical Service to provide Parliament, government and the wider community with the statistical information, analysis and advice needed to improve decision-making, stimulate research and inform debate. It also registers key life events. It aims to provide an authoritative and impartial picture of society and a window on the work and performance of government, allowing the impact of government policies and actions to be assessed.

Gazetteer of the old and new geographies of the United Kingdom

INTRODUCTION

Within the United Kingdom, the local government structure of Great Britain has recently undergone significant change as a result of a programme of local government reorganisation. Changes have also been made to the areas for which regional statistics are produced.

It has been recognised that the extent of change may cause confusion in attempting to compare the old and new geographies, and so a Gazetteer was produced in June 1997 to help overcome this possible confusion. In particular, the Gazetteer was designed to assist in distinguishing between those areas in England with unitary authority status and those retaining two-tier local government. The Gazetteer also identified those local authorities in England that have quasi unitary authority status, ie. the London boroughs and the metropolitan districts, because there is no county council.

With the completion of local government reorganisation, more detail can usefully be made available about the extent and impact of the changes to the statistical regions and reorganised local authorities. The additional detail is provided in this extended version of the Gazetteer. This later Gazetteer also reflects changes to the names of some of the unitary authorities since the initial Gazetteer was produced and additionally contains:

- maps showing those areas affected by local government reorganisation;
- detailed constitutions of those reorganised local authorities that comprise parts of former local authorities;
- links between the current local government authorities, and health authorities and NHS regions; and
- a glossary.

Since the initial Gazetteer was published a revised NUTS (Nomenclature of Units for Territorial Statistics) classification of spatial units has been adopted in the United Kingdom as a consequence of the introduction of the reorganised statistical regions and local authorities.

This later version of the Gazetteer includes the full revised NUTS classification and maps for each of the twelve 1st level NUTS areas. (See pages 87-113 for further information.)

EXTENT OF GEOGRAPHICAL CHANGE

Changes to the structure of local government

The impact of the changes varies within each of the United Kingdom's constituent countries.

England

In England, the traditional two-tier local government structure was partially replaced by a phased introduction of single-tier unitary authorities. These changes started with the creation of the Isle of Wight unitary authority in April 1995 and were completed in April 1998 when the final tranche of 19 unitary authorities were created. 46 unitary authorities have been created in England in total.

Wales

In Wales, the complete two-tier local government structure was replaced by 22 unitary authorities in April 1996. 12 of the authorities have 'county' status and 10 have 'county borough' status - see page 42.

Scotland

Similarly, in Scotland, the complete two-tier local government structure was replaced by 32 single-tier unitary authorities in April 1996.

Northern Ireland

In Northern Ireland, local government was reorganised in October 1973 when the two-tier structure was replaced by a structure comprising single-tier district council areas.

Changes to the statistical regions

In addition to the changes to the local government structure, the primary classification for the presentation of regional statistics in England changed in 1996 from Standard Statistical Regions to Government Office Regions. The boundaries and constitutions of some regions changed as a consequence. The introduction of Government Office Regions has increased the number of statistical regions in England from 8 to 9, although when the initial Gazetteer was published there were 10 for administrative purposes as Merseyside had its own Government Office. The Merseyside Regional Office has since merged with the North West Regional Office and this Gazetteer reflects the position after the merger. (Merseyside was never adopted as a region in its own right for statistical purposes because of the difficulties associated with obtaining the full range of data for a relatively small area. However, wherever possible, figures for the two components of the North West and Merseyside Region have been made available in government statistical publications.)

CREATION OF A UNITED KINGDOM GAZETTEER

Although the recent geographical changes have been limited to Great Britain, the Gazetteer includes all the constituent local government areas in the United Kingdom for completeness.

This version of the Gazetteer has been built from the local government areas existing after local government reorganisation. These areas comprise unitary authorities, London boroughs, metropolitan districts and non-metropolitan (county) districts and are collectively referred to as the basic 'building blocks'. Most building blocks can be linked, either wholly or in parts, to the former local government structure and to the higher level geographies existing prior to local government reorganisation.

The building blocks can also be aggregated to both the old and new regional structures and to the higher levels of the recently adopted revised NUTS areal classification.

GAZETTEER CONTENT

This Gazetteer comprises separate sections for each of the four constituent UK countries and, within each section, the building blocks are listed alphabetically to facilitate easy searching on familiar names (see column A).

The Gazetteer contains twelve columns (A-L) which are fully described.

Column A

This column contains the single or lower-tier local government areas (ie. the individual London boroughs, metropolitan districts, unitary authorities and county districts) that exist following local government reorganisation in England, Wales and Scotland. The single-tier district council areas in Northern Ireland are also shown. Generally, the areal levels shown in this column also form the NUTS 4 level areas, but in Scotland four unitary authorities are split at this NUTS level.

Column B

This column shows the NUTS 3 level areas existing in England, Wales and Scotland. These areas comprise individual counties/unitary authorities or groups of counties/London boroughs/metropolitan districts/unitary authorities/county districts in England, groups of unitary authorities in Wales, groups of whole/part unitary authorities and/or local enterprise company areas in Scotland, and groups of district council areas in Northern Ireland.

Column C

For areas in England, Wales and Scotland, the sub-regional NUTS 2 area name is given. The area names are based on those existing after local government reorganisation. These areas comprise individual counties or groups of counties/London boroughs/metropolitan districts/unitary authorities in England, groups of unitary authorities in Wales, and groups of whole/part unitary authorities and/or local enterprise company areas in Scotland. In Northern Ireland, the NUTS 2 level area is the country.

Column D

Similarly at the regional NUTS 1 areal level, for areas in England, the Government Office Region (GOR) is shown and in the rest of the United Kingdom the appropriate country name is given. (Note 1: The Gazetteer reflects the name change of 'Eastern GOR' to 'East of England GOR' on 1 February 1999. Note 2: In England, the recently introduced Regional Development Agencies are responsible for the same geographical areas as the Government Office Regions. Note 3: The areas shown in this column for all the UK constituent countries also form the (European) Electoral Regions operative in June 1999.)

Column E

For areas in England, the former Standard Statistical Region is shown. For areas in the three countries forming the rest of the United Kingdom, the appropriate country name is given.

Column F

This column shows the higher level structure that existed in Great Britain prior to local government reorganisation.

For areas in England, this column includes either:

- the Greater London Council area (separately identified as being either ‘inner’ or ‘outer’) or the former metropolitan county council area that existed prior to their abolition; or
- the (shire) county in which the building blocks were located prior to local government reorganisation.

For areas in Wales, the counties in which the building blocks were located prior to local government reorganisation are given.

For areas in Scotland, the regions in which the building blocks were located prior to local government reorganisation are given.

No information is provided for areas in Northern Ireland because it was not subject to the recent programme of local government reorganisation.

Column G

This column contains the local authority districts existing in Great Britain prior to local government reorganisation.

Column H

For all areas in Great Britain, the counties and unitary authorities existing after local government reorganisation are shown. For areas in Greater London, the metropolitan counties and Berkshire, where the former county councils have been abolished but not the county, both the single-tier authorities and the county names are shown.

Column I

The current local government structure existing for each area within Great Britain is shown. In Wales, the distinction between areas having county or county borough status is shown additionally.

Column J

The operational date for the introduction of each new authority created within Great Britain as a result of local government reorganisation is shown.

Column K

This column contains the health authority/authorities within which each building block in the United Kingdom is located. The health authorities shown reflect the changes operative in the Eastern Region (in England) from 1 April 1999.

Column L

For areas in England, this column contains the NHS Executive region office areas within which each building block is located. The regions shown are those operative from 1 April 1999.

¹ Local government in Northern Ireland was reorganised in October 1973 when the two-tier local government structure was replaced by a single tier of District Councils. Columns (F)-(J) have been omitted because the recent reorganisation of local government did not extend to Northern Ireland.

New authorities created in Great Britain by local government reorganisation

ENGLAND - All unitary authorities in England are counties, by legal definition, because the Local Government Act 1972 requires that all of England other than London and the Isles of Scilly must be within a county area. However, for many purposes the unitary authorities are treated as districts.

The following unitary authorities have been created

Bath and North East Somerset (1996)	Medway (1998) (name changed from 'Medway Towns' wef 1 April 1998)	Southend-on-Sea (1998)
Blackburn with Darwen (1998) (name changed from 'Blackburn' wef 2 May 1997)	Middlesbrough (1996)	South Gloucestershire (1996)

'Quasi' unitary authorities in England

A single-tier structure of local government has existed in England since 1 April 1986 when the Greater London Council and the metropolitan county councils were abolished for administrative purposes. The former council areas were not abolished and continue to be used for statistical purposes.

Statistics for areas in London are produced for:

- The City of London and 32 London boroughs; or
- Two areas comprising:

- The City of London and 13 Inner London boroughs:

Camden	Lewisham
Hackney	Newham
Hammersmith and Fulham	Southwark
Haringey	Tower Hamlets
Islington	Wandsworth
Kensington and Chelsea	Westminster
Lambeth

- 19 Outer London boroughs:

Barking and Dagenham	Havering
Barnet	Hillingdon
Bexley	Hounslow
Brent	Kingston upon Thames
Bromley	Merton
Croydon	Redbridge
Ealing	Richmond upon Thames
Enfield	Sutton
Greenwich	Waltham Forest
Harrow

The metropolitan counties are shown below and comprise between 4 and 10 metropolitan boroughs:

- Greater Manchester (10 boroughs):

Bolton	Salford
Bury	Stockport
Manchester	Tameside
Oldham	Trafford
Rochdale	Wigan

- Merseyside (5 boroughs):

Knowsley	Sefton
Liverpool	Wirral
St. Helens

- South Yorkshire (4 boroughs):

Barnsley	Rotherham
Doncaster	Sheffield

- Tyne and Wear (5 boroughs):

Gateshead	South Tyneside
Newcastle upon Tyne	Sunderland
North Tyneside

- West Midlands (7 boroughs):

Birmingham	Solihull

Impact of local government reorganisation on counties in England and Wales and regions in Scotland

ENGLAND

The impact of local government reorganisation on the English ‘shire’ counties is shown below. ‘Shire’ has been used to describe the non-metropolitan counties that comprise districts (including cities and boroughs) where both levels of local government fulfil administrative functions.

Of 39 ‘shire’ counties in England:

- 14 have been unaffected by local government reorganisation;
- 20 have been affected by varying degrees (an indication of the extent is given below);
- 4 have been abolished; and
- the council of one county has been abolished but not the county.

Counties not subject to change

The following ‘shire’ counties in England have not lost any districts through local government reorganisation:

Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly	Northumberland
Cumbria	Oxfordshire
Gloucestershire	Somerset
Hertfordshire	Suffolk
Lincolnshire	Surrey
Norfolk	Warwickshire
Northamptonshire	West Sussex

NB: Unitary authorities incorporating ‘Gloucestershire’, ‘Lincolnshire’ and ‘Somerset’ in their names have been created but have been formed from districts in former adjoining counties that have been abolished (eg. North Somerset which was previously Woodspring district in the former county of Avon).

Counties subject to change

The following ‘shire’ counties have lost either one or two districts through local government reorganisation (numbers are given in brackets) but have retained a ‘rump’ of districts where ‘two-tier’ local government is continuing to be provided:

Bedfordshire (1)	Hereford (1 - all of Hereford) and Worcester*
Buckinghamshire (1)	Kent (2 merging)
Cambridgeshire (1)	Lancashire (2)
Cheshire (2)	Leicestershire (2)
Derbyshire (1)	North Yorkshire (1)
Devon (2)	Nottinghamshire (1)
Dorset (2)	Shropshire (1)
Durham (1)	Staffordshire (1)
East Sussex (2 merging)	Wiltshire (1)
Essex (2)
Hampshire (2)

* Worcester has separated from Hereford to become a single shire county (Worcestershire); none of its constituent districts have been given unitary authority status.

Counties abolished

The following ‘shire’ counties have been abolished as a result of local reorganisation:

Avon (April 1996)	Humberside (April 1996)
Cleveland (April 1996)	Isle of Wight (April 1995)

County council only abolished

Berkshire (April 1998)

WALES

All eight Welsh counties were abolished on 1 April 1996:

Clwyd	Mid Glamorgan
Dyfed	Powys
Gwent	South Glamorgan
Gwynedd	West Glamorgan

SCOTLAND

All twelve Scottish regions were abolished on 1 April 1996:

Borders	Lothian
Central	Orkney
Dumfries and Galloway	Shetland
Fife	Strathclyde
Grampian	Tayside
Highland	Western Isles

Constitutions of part pre-local government reorganisation districts forming post-local government reorganisation unitary authorities

Note: The numbers in the ‘Pre-LGR district’ column refer to the part districts in the ‘Local Government Reorganisation - Local Authority District/Unitary Authority Matrix’ on pages 49-52 and in the ‘Local Government Reorganisation - Unitary Authority/Local Authority District Matrix’ on pages 53-55. Details of the statutory instruments (SIs) introducing the changes in England are included in this section. The changes in Wales and Scotland were introduced by the Local Government (Wales) Act 1994 and the Local Government (Scotland) Act 1994 respectively and Schedule 1 of each Act contains the geographical extent of the new authorities.

NUTS (Nomenclature of Units for Territorial Statistics) classification

NUTS classification : area levels

NUTS (Nomenclature of Units for Territorial Statistics) is a hierarchical classification of spatial units that provides a breakdown of the European Union's territory for producing regional statistics which are comparable across the Union.

In the United Kingdom, the five-tier NUTS structure has recently been reviewed as a consequence of the introduction of Government Office Regions and unitary authorities. The new NUTS area classification comprises current national administrative areas, except in Scotland where some NUTS areas comprise whole and/or part local enterprise company areas. A summary of the structure, including the numbers of areas at each level for each country, is shown below.

	England	Wales	Scotland	Northern Ireland	Total
NUTS 1	Government Office Regions (9)	Country (1)	Country (1)	Country (1)	12
NUTS 2	Individual counties or groups of counties/London boroughs/metropolitan districts/unitary authorities (30)	Groups of unitary authorities (2)	Groups of whole/part unitary authorities and/or local enterprise company areas (4)	Country (1)	37
NUTS 3	Individual counties/unitary authorities or groups of counties/London boroughs/metropolitan districts/unitary authorities/county districts (93)	Groups of unitary authorities (12)	Groups of whole/part unitary authorities and/or local enterprise company areas (23)	Groups of district council areas (5)	133
NUTS 4	Individual London boroughs/metropolitan districts/unitary authorities/county districts (354)	Individual unitary authorities (22)	Individual or groups of whole/part unitary authorities and/or local enterprise company areas (41)	Individual district council areas (26)	443
NUTS 5	Electoral wards/divisions (8,442*)	Electoral divisions (865*)	Whole/part electoral wards (1,247*)	Electoral wards (582*)	11,136

* As at 7 May 1998. Figure for England includes five parishes on the Isles of Scilly which is not warded; figure for Scotland includes four NUTS 5 areas that form two electoral wards.

Area codes

The ONS geographic support service (ONS Geography) maintains a geographic database containing area codes for all administrative areas in the United Kingdom. These codes are assigned to unit postcodes and are available on a range of postcode directories that link current and terminated unit postcodes to administrative areas, both current and frozen as at the date of the 1991 Census (21 April).
